The Real Truth about Price and Quality

You eat beef. You know good beef is not found in the neck, the shoulder, the belly or the rump of the cow. Now, every meat eater, and everybody else, wears soles made of leather. There is good and bad leather, just as there is good and bad beef. Over the good meat in the cow is found the good leather. Over the poor meat in the cow is found the poor leather. That's simple, isn't it? Now take a look at the left-hand drawing. When you buy beef you want sirloin, tenderloin or prime ribs. You don't want rump, chuck, neck, leg, or shoulder.

Now look at the right-hand drawing. Have your shoes soled with leather known as prime strips or fine strips. Keep away from the butt, shoulder and belly if you want first class sole leather on your shoes. The shoe repairman who is doing cheap work is using cheap material—he is using butt, belly or shoulder, the cheapest part of the hide.

Play Up—Play The Game

There's a breathless hush in the close tonight—
Ten to make and the match to win—
A bumping pitch and a blinding light,
An hour to play and the last man in.
And it's not for the sake of a ribboned coat
Or the selfish hope of a season's fame,
But his Captain's hand on his shoulder smote—
“Play up, Play up, and play the game!”

The sand of the desert is sodden red,—
Red with the wreck of the square that broke;
The gatling's jammed and the Colonel dead,
And the regiment blind with dust and smoke,
The river of death has brimmed his banks,
And England's far, and Honour a name,
But the voice of a schoolboy rallies the ranks:
“Play up, Play up, and Play the game!”

This is the word that year by year,
While in her place the school is set
Every one of her sons must hear
And none that hears it dare forget,
This they all with a joyful mind,
Bear through life like a torch in flame,
And falling fling to the host behind—
“Play up, Play up, and Play the game!”

POE'S UNDERSTUDY

By BERNARD SHERIDAN, '22

One warm spring afternoon when business was at a standstill, I put on my hat and sauntered out of the office. It was a really fine day, too pleasant to spend cramped over an old fashioned roll top desk, in a musty office. It had been a cold and severe winter and it was with a feeling of freedom that the public in general gladly threw off it's overcoat and once more filled it's lungs with the still, balmy atmosphere of a March Day.

Things seemed to take on a new aspect on a warm spring day. The clang of street cars and the rattle of wagons and automobiles all seemed to have an air of spring. The sparrows in the street even seemed to chirp more joyfully. As I strolled thus thinking of nothing in particular I heard rapid footsteps behind me. Soon somebody fell into step beside me and pleasantly commented on the fine weather. I was startled to see that it was a comparatively young man, dressed in a silk hat, a Tuxedo, silk gloves and patent leather shoes. As these clothes are seldom worn, in these times, even at so-called "swell affairs" I might well have been surprised. They were as out of place for street wear as a boat on the desert.

My first impression was that, here was a distinguished author or actor, or similar person of fame and influence, and I felt a feeling of pride, at being honored with such a person's attention.

But I regained my poise and composure and before long we were conversing quite chummily. I was not surprised to find that he used excellent English and was a capable painter of very expressive word pictures. Altogether he was quite a likeable chap even though some of his statements were rather disconnected in meaning.

It was rather surprising though to find that his name was Edgar Allen Poe. Rather a coincidence I called it, as I thought of the repetitions of great men's names in the city directory. At this time I had a faint suspicion that he might be a thief or a confidence man or even a liar.

Just as we were passing a book store he grasped my arm and urged me to accompany him inside for a few moments. As I proceeded to follow him I glanced over my shoulder and noticed quite a crowd of young street urchins and women whose curiosity had impelled them to find out the business of such an elaborate gentleman in this particular section of town.

As the sleepy looking clerk slouched forward my strange companion asked for a complete set of Poe's works. When they were produced he tendered the clerk the amount required for the books.

He smiled at me and pointed to the books.

"All your's," he exclaimed.

But nonplussed as I was, the greater surprise was in store when he opened each book and autographed it, "Best Wishes, from Edgar Allen Poe." I glanced from the window and noticed the crowd of spectators staring at us.

Just then the door burst open and an official looking personage hustled in. He glanced sharply at me as he walked over toward my new friend.

"Well, well Edgar," he exclaimed, "where have you been for the last two hours. I've looked all over this end of town for a trace of you. I want to notify you that a publishing company would like another one of your books like the "Gold Bug." James is in front with the car and you can go home and write another story."

I arrived in front in time to see my friend climb into a cab with the official looking man jumping in behind. On the side of the cab were the words, "State Insane Asylum."

I found out later that the poor fellow had lost his mind trying to write stories and poems which would equal Poe's works.

THE NEW ADDITION

In the beginning when South High was founded, there came into existence an institution that has rapidly grown in size and fame.

In 1911 when our Alma Mater was erected it consisted only of the long, oblong front which is three stories in height. Classes were conducted against the competition of carpenters' hammers, and from that small beginning came our beautiful, majestic and honored South High.

The attendance, moderate at first, rapidly began to out-grow the building so in 1913 the necessity arose for larger rooms with more conveniences.

Old South

At that time South had begun to make herself known. She took active part in athletics, dramatics and music and so the need arose for an auditorium. The year of 1913 marked a new era for South, for to her sturdy beginning was added our present auditorium and to the South and North ends extended two additions or wings and from that time she literally tried those wings and succeeded. With more rooms and new conveniences, more students could be accommodated and the student enrollment rapidly increased.

Higher and higher she arose as year after year saw Seniors graduate and Freshmen enter. Changes were made in our faculty and new Principals succeeded the former ones. But ever forward was South's motto and onward to greater victories was her cry.

Gradually up the ladder she ascended until once more the cries of her children were heard as they clamored for admittance to an already over crowded school. Once more the problem of correct class rooms and proper facilities confronted her and again she appealed for expansion.

Therefore through the summer and fall of 1921, South was again under the hammer, trowel and saw and through the months of mid-winter she grew and spread farther back on her campus and in February 1922 an extension to the north wing was opened for classes. In this wing are many new rooms with conveniences not enjoyed before. A new cafeteria and lunch room, which is the main, new feature, is located on the third floor the entire length of the addition and with new stairs and industrial rooms, the old, yet new South is complete.

As she now stands, a solemn monument to wisdom, we gaze and admire and always love and revere our South whose loving arms stand open to receive all who search for truth.

The new addition as viewed from Delason avenue near Market street makes the whole school very impressive and greatly adds to the artistic atmosphere of our Dear Old South. The new wing comprises an addition which has been sorely needed for many semesters to take care of the large number of pupils which increases at the beginning of each year.

The number of windows, the craftsmanship in evidence and the length and height of the school as a whole is awe-inspiring and pleasing. When the grounds are graded and the lawn is seeded, Old South, will be one of the notable buildings of this fine city.

Our new cafeteria is a place of light-someness. It is well lighted and a very cheerful place in which to eat. It is said that pleasing surroundings are necessary to correct eating. If this is true the new cafeteria will certainly be conducive to health. It is a very large room with a seating capacity of six hundred. At the South end of the room is the line of serving counters. One can get all that is usually served at a luncheon. It gives employment to three salaried women and about thirty girls. Some of the food is to be cooked by our Domestic Science girls, so we have a double object in eating there. This certainly puts South near the top in comparison with other schools.

The new study hall is situated at the far south corner of the building on the second floor of the new addition.

Two large double doors form the entrance, and the lighting of the room is more than adequate. Along the north side are the three sets of double windows that provide light for even the farthest corner of the room, and when necessary the lighting fixtures, which are both beautiful and useful, can be used.

The seating capacity of the room is about two hundred. The desks are comfortable, as well as beautiful, and form double rows along the room. At the far east end is the platform, situated directly in front of the desks.

In all the new study hall is one more of the many things of usefulness to be added to the school.

In a write up of the advantages of our new addition it would be gross neglect to leave out an account of the industrial department. Most of the rooms of this department are on the basement floor. The large spacious rooms of the new woodworking section are wonderful to see, all of them being fully equipped with new machinery. The mechanical drawing room is one of the largest rooms on the floor being brilliantly lighted by the large windows on two sides. The desks, which are of a new type, are designed to give all the comfort and efficiency that is possible. The new equipment, drawing sets, blue printing apparatus, etc., must be seen by one who understands to appreciate their efficiency and worth.

Close by the rooms of the industrial section are the large tiers of new lockers which give the boys who work in the forge and woodworking departments a chance to bring suits of working clothes so that they may work to better advantage in the shops.

In all the new addition is a thing of beauty and usefulness which will be appreciated for many years to come.

LAZY-TIME

When the first spring winds are blowing,
And the sunshine floods the land,
Bout the time when things start growing
And there's work on every hand.

When the balmy zephyr's breezin'
From the Mason-Dixon line,
Then there comes a certain season
That the folks call lazy-time.

And your bound to be a-slumpin'
In most anything you do,
When the fish begin a-jumpin'
And when Nature's callin' you.

Then among the birds and flowers
In the shade of some tall pine,
I could lie and dream for hours,
In the spring, in lazy-time.

GRENNIE'S SECRET

GERTRUDE WINFIELD, '23

PART ONE

The Oakdale High Club was holding its regular monthly meeting. The club was composed of boys of the senior class of Oakdale High School who were foremost in scholarship, athletics, or school activities. The members were popular with class-mates and teacher alike. Larry Mentor, at the moment was speaking.

"Very well, fellows, tomorrow we'll tell Gren and Don and I'm sure they will come in. Now everybody clear out 'cause I have to study a little and I don't want anyone to bother me."

The matter to which Larry was referring, was that of inviting Grenton Jones and Donald Maphtes into the club. Grenton, an exceedingly popular boy, had started in September to school. In a small high school of a small town where strangers are an unusual occurrence, "Grennie" soon became popular. Oakdale's football team, a sad affair of willing but ignorant brawn, was built into a fast moving engine, when Gren joined the squad. On Thanksgiving Day, Oakdale defeated their most bitter enemy by turning the tables on the after six years of defeat. It was Grennie who was unanimously elected captain for the following year.

It was Gren who inspired the coach to ask the board for showers and it was he who made the English teachers realize what a school paper would mean to Oakdale. Strangely, Grennie was not spoiled or conceited by the open admiration of his classmates. Strange, also that he was not disliked by them, no one in the old town seemed jealous of his popularity and he was known by everybody who lived in Oakdale, after he had been there five weeks. So the club had, for a long time, been thinking of asking him to join. There were two reason why they had not asked him before.

Grennie lived with his cousin, Don Maphtes, in the Maphtes homestead. Don's parents despaired of his ever being a real boy, and they loved this fun-loving athletic nephew. Don was a student—only a student. When Gren would squirm and wriggle nights over the knotty "trig" problems, Don's pencil would flash over the paper like greased lightning while Gren enviously looked on. Don, being a good sport, would make the darkness clear to Gren and so they went on, each admiring the other. Don't think that Don wasn't liked at school. Oh no! It was that he just didn't fit. The only team he would have fitted on would be the debating team and there was "no such animal" at Oakdale. He tried to be interested in football—tried hard, and now, under Gren's skillful training was really trying out for basketball. So the club members now felt that Don would like to become one of them and voted to ask him and Gren.

The second reason was that Gren's father had been killed in the war. When the news reached his mother she failed rapidly until one day they found her asleep forever. Gren had stayed with the servants until all his money was gone—he was too bewildered to wonder where—and then he accepted the invitation to live with his aunt and uncle in the United States. So he crossed the ocean and came back to his mother's home—the land of the free and the brave! His uncle and aunt had lived in Oakdale for over fifteen years—before that—the town knew nothing and the Maphtes had never enlightened it regarding their past. They became well-liked and the social village took them at their face value and welcomed them.

The next morning at school, Gren was informed of the meeting of the club and he and Don were given their invitation to join. Both were delighted.

"Say Larry," said Gren as they threw off their coats, "there's a new fellow at school today. I saw him going up to the office. Funny looking, he was—no, not funny, just different. I suppose we'll see him in assembly."

Sure enough, in assembly, Mr. Leonard introduced the senior class to a dark-eyed, black haired rather handsome boy, Paul Batinee, was his name. Gren found himself regarding the newcomer with interest. As he was being introduced Paul bowed and said, "Delighted Messieurs," in a wonderful French accent. As he straightened up again Gren's eyes met his, shifted, held; then Paul smiled, revealing a set of perfect white teeth. And both knew they were going to like the other.

And now—enters the girl. Her name is Nancy, Nancy Glenn and she was quite the belle of the school.

There were many girls prettier than she, but Nancy was Nancy and no one else was quite like her. She knew her soft brown hair curled in just the right place and she was glad of it. She knew too, that if she smiled hard enough two very beautiful dimples were to be seen—and Nancy always smiled. So when Gren met Nancy everyone knew what would happen, and it did. They became great pals and friends.

The next day, Saturday, a large moving van stopped next door to the Maphtes house. It was a new house, quite fine to look upon. Gren was up in his room and when the van stopped he looked out of the window to see who his neighbors were. He saw a man, foreign, he thought, talking to the moving man who seemed to have difficulty in understanding him. Just then Paul Batinee, the newcomer ran up the steps followed by an elderly lady, a foreigner also. Paul grasped the man by the arm, spoke to him quietly and turned to the other man. The snow, falling heavily, almost shut out the scene from Gren. He saw Paul hold out his hand, look up, bewildered, and then go into the house. A minute later he emerged, clad in a sweater and great heavy gloves. He started to help the moving man. Gren opened the window and leaned out. "Need any help, Paul?" Paul glanced up, saw Gren and smiled. "Oh! you live there? Merci, I am glad if you can help." Gren laughed and said, "All right, I'll be down in a minute." He disappeared and true to his word was in front of Paul soon. Paul explained: "You see, we have been living at the hotel—that is what you call it? —ah yes. We were living at the hotel until our furnishings should come. They come today—we have to bring them from station to Maison—they would not wait. Ah! these Americans. They not wait for any person. So we bring them from train to Maison—now it snow, we have difficulty to get them in."

"Well," said Gren, "Let's begin. If they have come on the train, they are all packed anyway, and the snow can't hurt them if you unpack them now."

So Paul took him in and introduced him to the strange lady and gentleman—an uncle and an aunt—and the five worked until the house was all fixed up. Gren lit the furnace and explained all its wonders to Paul. He laid the carpets, fixed the curtains and proved himself a handy all-round man. When the house really took on an appearance of home, he and Paul went to the store and bought the evening meal. He quite won the hearts of the queer old uncle and aunt and received many invitations to come back again.

A month passed. Paul, Don and Gren became fast friends. Gren and Don were both on the basketball team and all three belonged to the Oakdale High Club. Many happy gossipy evenings they spent there, these three. One evening "Spoof" McClellan plunged into the room breathlessly. (Spoof received his name from the fact that, of all the queer ideas a person gets into his head, this young man had the queerest.

"Say fellows, have you noticed—" here his eyes fell upon Paul and he stopped abruptly.

"Well, what is it? What have we noticed?" asked the boys.

"Oh nothing—only that we can skate in a week. Came by the lake coming up," explained Spoof and everyone knew that was not what he meant to say. Gren paused and lowered his head. What had Spoof meant to say? And why did he quit so abruptly? The talk drifted to the ice topic. In a few weeks, the great skating contest would be held and the whole town was talking about it.

“Ready to go, Paul?” questioned Gren. “I promised Aunt Peg I’d be home early.”

“Yes, I’m ready, Grennie,” responded Paul, who had been unusually quiet since Spoof bounced in. “Goodbye everybody, I’ll see you tomorrow.”

And the two left, each with the same thought.

End of Part One.

METHODS

If you’ll read this little poem, there’s no doubt that you will find
That high school work is not so tough as to really hurt your mind;
For if at bluffing you are good, and teachers you can fool,
Four years of ease and pleasure may come your way at school.

Take, for instance, mathematics, with its dizzy curves and lines,
Its cold and mad equations, or its “tangents”, “graphs”, and “sines”;
To do its problems rightly might upset your peace of mind,
But to copy some shark’s answers is much easier, you’ll find.

Suppose the teacher gives a test—now here’s the thing to do;
Take pains to have the smartest “stude” sit right in front of you,
Keep looking at his paper—copy everything he’s got;
You’ll get as good a grade as he, providing you’re not caught.

If your Caesar or your Virgil is rather hard to get,
Don’t plague your brain about it, for you have no cause to fret;
Simply send to Ginn and Company for a “pony” right away,
No doubt you’ll get your lessons nearly perfect every day.

And should your English teacher make you hand in book reports,
You needn’t even read a book, if some of your friends are sports;
Just copy what they’ve written; that’s all you have to do,
You’re liable to get a “5” for it, but you might get “1” or “2”.

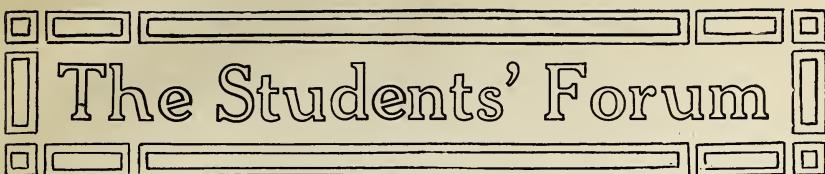

Now, friends, I’ve tried to show you in a simple sort of way,
Of the many schemes to follow, but, in truth, it doesn’t pay;
Of all the methods that I know there’s one I’d recommend:
It’s Dig and Work and Study,—it’s the best one in the end.

And when your school days terminate, and you’re thrust out into life,

And you buck against the issues of a sea of worldly strife,
There’ll be no “Profs” to guide you, nor “sharks” to pull you through,

And you’ll find it isn’t “bluff” that counts when you’re judged by what you do.

Seniors in the Study Halls

Once more the Seniors and the Freshmen are studying in the same rooms, after a separation of one and one-half years. What a golden opportunity the Seniors now have to set a good example to the lower class men! Are they taking advantage of this opportunity or are they allowing it to slip by without regard?

The Seniors are the natural leaders in high school, and therefore should have some consideration for their manner of conducting themselves in the study hall. They should set an example of dignity, not of misbehavior. They should take pride in keeping all the rules and regulations with regard to the study hall and should use their influence with the lower classmen for like results.

There are a few Seniors at present who think it their bound duty to make as much trouble as possible for the study room teacher by "acting up" in utterly childish ways. They perhaps do not stop to think that the study periods are for their own benefit, and not merely a time to test the teacher's disciplinary ability.

In the case of the absence of a teacher, there is no excuse for the students literally to tear the room to pieces. The Seniors in the room at the time should take it upon themselves to maintain order. They should do all in their power to prevent acts that would be disgraceful to South High School.

The students should at all times bear in mind that South High is their school, and they make it what it is. The Seniors, as the leaders of the entire student body, should strive to make the study halls a source of pride to the whole school, by conducting themselves in their study periods in a manner becoming Seniors of South High School.

The Little Things that Count

So often people make the mistake of thinking that little things do not count, that it takes big things to make one famous. But in a short time they realize their mistake and start with the little things in their upward climb.

And likewise does this apply with students of South. Little did we realize last semester the difficulties we would have to meet. We are now in a most difficult position, and that is reorganization. For a year and a half things have been slipping past unnoticed. Those little things that go to make the reputation of a school were forgotten in the rush and tumult.

With a jolt we have come back, literally speaking, to life. Everything seems strange. Students seem bewildered as to the new conditions and have a hard feeling for their oppressive teachers.

Now is the time to show, students of South, that you too can conquer the little things and start upward toward making South perfect.

The attitude some few students show toward their teachers is unfair and is not the right spirit. Remember they too are having as hard if not a harder time than you.

Just the other day two girls were standing in the hall talking at the close of school. A teacher walked up to them and asked them to keep moving on, as they were holding up the crowd. The one looked up with a cold stare and said, "We're not quite through talking yet."

Things like clearing the halls immediately and going to your respective places, keeping your clothes off the floor when you are provided with place, good behavior in Study Halls and numerous others, are little things, but, oh they count so much.

So let's get together with a pull and work hard toward conquering these little things, and then—imagine South.

Grace Kriger, '22.

In the Corridors

What others think of you, not what you think of yourself, is the index of your position and that they should think well of you is perhaps the first end in life which you should strive to accomplish.

Reserve and inconspicuousness should characterize your demeanor in public—loud-talking, showy dress and loud laughter are unpardonable.

A strict reserve should be observed in the corridors, for we are most likely to meet and impress strangers.

Greetings should be conventional and free from effusiveness. Friends should avoid calling each other loudly by name.

People who stop to talk midway up the corridor make themselves objects of ridicule, as it is customary to step aside, and then make the conversation brief.

People who insist upon walking four or five abreast, and making it most inconvenient for others to pass should not be permitted in the corridors. In passing always keep to the right.

Never "elbow" your way through a crowd because you are in a hurry. Others are not responsible for the cause of your haste, and you have no right to claim the "right of way" over them.

A meek "I beg your pardon," accompanied by a vicious "jab" of the elbow, is not conducive to the good nature of the recipient. Therefore, if you are going to "push," you will do well to do so gently, so that your words and your actions may not be too incongruous.

In a measure the force of our actions is dependent upon our physical strength, while our conduct is largely dependent upon our mental equipment.

AMICITIA-FRESHMAN PARTY

"Are you going?" "Where?" "To the Amicitia-Freshmen party, of course."

On Wednesday afternoon, March 1, after school, the Amicitia Club with the assistance of Miss Frey, and several of the women teachers entertained for the Freshmen girls, and oh, what a party! More than 200 girls were there. The Seniors forgot their dignity, the Freshmen forgot to be shy and everyone had a good time.

The girls first met in the new study for a few announcements, and the Amicitia club had a short stunt, the object of it was to tell the Freshmen girls just how to act, and it was carried on in a farcical manner. After this they all trooped up to the new cafeteria where all the teachers led in games, and then after the grand march, the girls were given all-day suckers—with the information that they were to be all eaten in five minutes—but no one succeeded in doing this. Aftr a grand snake dance through the corridors and through both study halls, the party was brought to a close.

The Amicitia Club invites all new girls, especially Freshmen, to join. The oficers of the club are: President, Florence Mathews Higby; Vice president; Florence Schuman; Secretary, Theda Shelton; Treasurer, Lillian McMillan.

THE EDITOR'S VIEWPOINT

Did it ever occur to you, fellow students, that you Our Halls reflect the life and good name of South High School?

Do you know that you are South High and that the building is your school home? You are the life of South and consequently responsible for the name and character she bears.

When in your home you do not throw your hat and coat on the floor; no, you hang it up. Then why throw your hat and coat on the floor in your school home? The chief difference is you sleep in the former and acquire knowledge in the latter. One is just as sacred in your memory as the other.

While walking down the corridor near the girls' lockers I noticed piles of coats on the floor, three more on the drinking fountain and some scattered around here and there, giving me the impression that I was close on the heels of a young cyclone. The scene by the boys' lockers was almost identical, so neither need blame the other. This can, and should be remedied. There is plenty of room in a locker for one coat and, if there are two in the locker, the other can be hung on the latch. If you would just take ten seconds longer to hang your wraps up, you would greatly help to improve the appearance of your school. Isn't South worth ten seconds of your precious time? Lockers aren't the prettiest things in the world with which to adorn halls but we can at least make an appearance of neatness and orderliness.

The teachers are doing all they can to remedy this situation but they are not responsible for the building, the students are. The teachers are paid to teach and the students are given a building in which to learn. It is your business to take care of that building and if you mark and destroy it wantonly you are lessening the chances of those who follow to secure an education.

So don't forget, fellow students, a school is what you make it; therefore let each one resolve to make this school the neatest, cleanest and finest school in Ohio.

The Line of Least Resistance The other day as I entered one of the department stores, I noticed that while one door was plainly marked "IN" and the other "OUT"—everyone went "IN" where it was marked "OUT." Why? Simply because that door was open and naturally the line of least resistance was through the open door. The fact that the majority of human beings inevitably and invariably choose the line of least resistance or effort is by no means a new one. It proves itself to be as old and as true as the ages. Studying the matter from a socialogical view point we find that in our own country the earliest settlers established a precedent along this line. They built their first roads and thoroughfares along the trails made by Indians or by wild animals. As our country grew the railroads began to wind their zigzag trail across the fields and hills. Here again, we have an example of choosing where the least effort is needed, for the workmen laid the rails and ties where they could do so quickest, easiest and most conveniently. And so on, down through the previous generations until we come to our own present day school life. Do we not find that far too many students in school are wont to follow where it is easiest? Unfortunately for them, they are left without a guide to lead them. Unlike our forefathers who had Mother Nature as a guide, they are practically helpless and a detriment to themselves and their school.

If Latin can be recited accurately and well by using a "pony"—why not? If one can master the most difficult chemistry equation or solve the most perplexing trigonometry problem by using someone else's head or judgment rather than conscientious work—why not? No one will know the difference but you and the person you received the assistance from. Herein certainly lies the line of least resistance and it probably does look much more pleasant than a school career of hard and laborious study, but better far—beware of it! It leads—not to dazzling heights of glory, honor, and fame—but to a dismal, contemptible and irreparable failure. It is well to remember that no great thing has ever been accomplished by shiftless thought and therefore if you have any hopes—and most students have—of reaching success—Work! The path that appears most tedious in the beginning will prove the path to true success. As Mabel Denison said:

"For throw the world your very best—
Its best will return to you."

ASSEMBLIES

Friday, February 10

After the 4th period today came another assembly, and after the opening prayer, and "America," Mr. Ashby Jones, Atlanta, Georgia, was presented to the school, and he gave a very fine address on "The Attitude of a Real Southerner Towards Abraham Lincoln." Mr. Jones was a fine speaker and his address was both fitting and proper for the occasion.

Friday, February 17

"Come on South, come on South, we play Rayen tomorrow." This is a sample of what could be heard the Friday before the second Rayen-South basketball game. The school was called to a voluntary assembly at the close of the ninth period for a special rally in preparation for the game, the cheering was good, and the spirit of the school ran high.

After the customary announcements we left the auditorium feeling ready to be behind the team whether in victory or defeat.

Tuesday, February 21

Today came an assembly with a double object—first in commemoration of the birthday of George Washington, and second as an honor to the football team which had recently brought to a close a very successful season.

Mr. Fellers, whom the school is always glad to see on the platform, delivered a very fitting address on George Washington, "the father of his country," and then the school received another pleasant surprise when Mr. Eaton announced that the Southern Six orchestra, composed of six South High boys would play for our entertainment. Their pieces were all popular ones and the school sincerely hopes that they will be back again. The students taking part were: Howard Hines, Wilson Patton, Paul Breese, Philip Prosser, Carl Feigert and Howard Clay.

Then the big event of the assembly: the presentation of the sweaters by Mr. Eaton to the various members of the team. The first to receive recognition was Captain Nels Williams, who had earned his letter the year before, but as a special honor to the captain of the team he was awarded a second one, then in rapid succession came the rest of the team amidst cheers and songs. The award of the service stripe went to Clem Gallagher, "Jiggs" Marie, "Yak" Jacobs, Joe Splain, "Mike" Shull, Rudolph Spong, Herbert Gintz; then the award of the sweaters to Sam George, Bill Parilla, "Tarzan" Welch, Frank Kennedy, "Peck" Barrett, Joseph Flasko, "Winker" Thomas, Ivan Blackman, Denton Doll, "Red" Richards, David Evans, Leroy Van Horn, Maurice Lipcher, "Jiggs" Jacobs, Charles Graves, and the student manager Kenneth Osborne.

After the usual announcements the students left the auditorium feeling that this was indeed the "best assembly yet."

Friday, February 24

It has been the custom of the Monday Musical Club to observe music week, once a year, and during this time representatives of the organization go to the various schools. At our assembly today Miss Isobel Evans favored us with vocal selections. Miss Bernice Rolaston entertained with a piano solo, and Mr. Harry Warner with a violin solo accompanied by Mrs. Warner, and last, but not least, Miss Helen Savin pleased with a vocal solo.

The school was very glad of the opportunity the Monday Musical provided and we hope they will come back again.

Friday, March 3

The assembly this morning was presided over by Mr. Chatterton on account of Mr. Eaton's absence.

After some cheers for the team who leave for the tournament at Akron today, the speaker of the morning was announced as Mr. Heiliger, publisher of the American Boy magazine and his talk was on the value of good literature. This is the first time the school has heard Mr. Heiliger, but we hope it will not be the last.

Monday, March 6

Assembly came today after the fourth period and we were all glad to see Mr. Eaton back to his usual post after his trip.

The main purpose of the assembly was to hear the Hiram Glee Club and they were worth hearing. Their songs were not only beautiful but their singing was, too. After their Glee Club selections came their "miniature orchestra," and if this is a miniature we would like to hear a life-sized one. Their pieces were all popular ones which, of course, were enjoyed by the school. We hated to see the Club leave but all things must end, especially the good things.

As has been the custom, the Senior Challenge to the faculty was given out this morning by Charles Graves and our ever ready "Chatty" replied. The time has been set for Wednesday, March 8, after school and a large faculty as well as student turn-out is expected.

After some cheers for the fine work done at the Akron tournament, the school was dismissed for lunch.

The Voice Staff enjoyed their annual mid-year dinner party Friday, March 3, at Wickliffe Manor House. Practically every member of the staff was there promptly at 6:30 P. M. A fine chicken dinner was served at seven o'clock and everyone present did it justice. The table was very beautifully arranged with pink carnations and candles in the center, and blue place cards at each seat. After supper the crowd enjoyed a few dances.

Miss Milligan led in numerous games and everyone had a rollicking good time.

Eleven o'clock came all too soon and "Chattie" played "Home Sweet Home" and all joined him in singing it.

Before wishing Mrs. Sabine goodnight, Ray McCarthy led in two rousing cheers for Wickliffe and all went home rather tired, but feeling that this party was a great success.

The honor guests were Mrs. Zinninger, Mr. and Mrs. Chatterton, Miss Van Keuren, Miss McDowell, and Miss Milligan.

All the members of the staff keenly regretted the absence of Principal and Mrs. Eaton who were in Chicago attending the meeting of the Department of Superintendents of the N. E. A.

Hi-Y Dance

At eight-thirty on the evening of February twenty-first, the Poland Country Club was the scene of the Hi-Y dance. There was a large crowd present but only a very few from South. Being favored by the McCullough Pep Orchestra they danced until 12:30 when everybody started for home wondering when the next one would be.

Hobos! where did they come from? Oh! I know, the Amicitia Club girls are having a Hobo Party, and sure enough they were. There were all kinds of hobos, but the ones looking the most like men were the most popular. Prizes were given to the best hobos, Janet McClellan receiving first prize and Virginia Van Fossan the booby prize.

On February 17 and 18 the Hadley Club, under the direction of Mr. Monroe, presented their annual operetta, entitled "The Belles Of Beaujolois." Esther Nause and Lehman Oakley taking the leading roles did justice to their parts. The operetta, as in former years, showed the merits of the musical department.

The annual Music Memory Contest was held by the Monday Musical Club at Rayen School, Saturday, February 25. We are proud to state that nine South students took prizes. Richard Phelan again received the first prize of $15.00 given by the Monday Musical Club. Anna Dugan received the second prize of $10.00, Ralph Nelson, the third prize of $5.00 and Enoch Light, a prize of $2.00. Beatrice Lyman, Durban Rhodes, Rhea Goldman, Blanche Slarziwski, and Evelyn Greenfield were each awarded a prize of $1.00.

Wednesday, February twenty-second—no school. We sure are glad Washington still has a birthday.

On Tuesday afternoon a week or so ago Miss A. Lind, Miss D. Lind, Miss Thoburn, Miss Maiden, Miss Brown, and Miss Milligan reported to the gym in middies and bloomers. The girls had a grand time showing them that there was one thing they could do as well as teachers could,—that one thing was basketball. Of course, it was the teachers' first practice.

B. M. D. Dance

The Blue Mogen Dovid Club held its third annual dance at the Japanese Lantern. The hall was decorated with the colors of both schools. The large crowd of young folks who attended had a merry time dancing, being favored with the music of the famous Southern Six. This club is well known throughout the city for its activities. Its membership includes students from both Rayen and South.

Athletics

Warren vs. South—February 10

Playing against the Warren High School team South had no trouble in adding to their string of victories. Although the game was very exciting and interesting, South had no occasion to extend herself to her full strength, getting with comparative ease her 34 points to Warren's 22. Cook as usual was high point man and his ability to shoot fouls was little short of uncanny. Line-up and summary:

Penhale vs. South Seconds—February 10

While our first team played Warren, Coach Ashbaugh sent his second squad to Penhale High to play the quintet from there. Although our men played a wonderful game, they were on the short end of the final score by a margin of six points, the score being 19-13. For South, Hartman displayed a brilliant brand of basketball, while Vlahovich and Chek of Penhale were the outstanding stars for the opposing five. Line-up:

South vs. Lorain—February 11

South completely overwhelmed their ancient rivals, Lorain by a score of 46-5. In the earlier stages of the game it looked as though it would be a tight game, for South did not seem able to fathom Lorain's method of five-man defense. However, a few moments after the game began, Macauley dropped in a pretty field goal and from that time on the outcome was never in doubt. Basket after basket was made thru the Lake City's guards, while their offense crumpled before the stonewall guarding of Doll and Kennedy. Cook, our star forward, made 23 of our 46 points, while Lorain made only one field goal. Line-up:

Glaciers vs. South—February 15

The Glacier basketball team composed of former South High stars met and defeated our own boys very decisively to the score of 42-28. Aside from the fact that the Glacier defeated us, the game developed into a foul shooting duel between Cook of South and White of the Glaciers. Cook had a slight edge on White, making 11 out of 18 tries. Line-up:

Rayen vs. South—February 18

We lose again. In losing the second Rayen-South game we have nothing to regret. Our team played quite up to standard, surpassing Rayen in every phase of the game except in shooting. When our team went on the auditorium floor for the second game they did not take into consideration one element, namely, Luck. The capricious lady bearing the name just mentioned smiled cheerfully on our opponents but saved her darkest scowl for the followers of the Red and Blue. Time after time we brought the ball down the floor. Time after time we shot, only to have the ball flirt outrageously with the basket and then roll out. The final score, 26-24, shows what a close contest the game was, but in some manner we had gained the disfavor of the ruler of our destinies, Lady Luck, and we lost. We congratulate Rayen on her second basketball victory over us and can only hope that if we meet Rayen at the tournament there will be a different story told. Line-up:

In the second game between the two South Side teams, Glaciers and South, the school boys avenged their defeat in the first game by winning 51-40.

Although not as fast and exciting as the first game, this game gave quite a few thrills to the interested spectators. Cook was high point man for South, caging eight baskets, while Randolph was a close second with 7. For the Glaciers the outstanding star was Benny McGaughay who made 18 of his team's points. NORTHEASTERN OHIO TOURNAMENT

March 3, 4, 1922

The Northeastern Ohio basketball tournament was held in the Goodyear Gymnasium, Akron, Ohio.

Our team, not fortunate enough to draw a blank, played Ashtabula High in the first game of the first round. South outplayed the Laketown boys both in passing and ability to cage the ball. Cook was the star of this game, caging five field goals. Church played well for the losers. Line-up and summary:

From the Akron West game South advanced to the semi-finals, which were scheduled for Saturday morning at nine o'clock.

Rayen defeated Cleveland West 22 to 3 Friday afternoon and therefore the first semi-final to be played was with one of our old favorites, a typical Rayen-South battle.

The South boys, rising at seven o'clock went to the gymnasium with the same old South spirit.

Rayen appeared on the floor first sockless as usual, amid cheers from the fairly sized crowd which accompanied the team to the tournament. A large crowd was present, not only for the Rayen-South battle but for the Akron South-Akron Central game, which is equivalent to our annual classic.

Our team waded into the North Siders with the same old "do or die" spirit. Cook caged a neat basket from the side and followed with a foul and another field goal. Sebastian made several attempts to shoot fouls but missed. Macauley made several of the most spectacular shots of the tournament, dropping the ball in from mid-floor. South after getting a 14 to 3 score on Rayen began to let up and proceeded to pass the ball around Rayen men running wildly to and fro. Line-up and summary:

South's second game in the semi-finals was with Massillon. In the morning the Red and Blue outplayed, not only Rayen, but also themselves; so they were unable to set a pace for the Massillon team. At the end of the half the score stood 10 to 10. After several minutes of the second half South was several points ahead, but Hess, Massillon forward and captain, made several field goals, thus bringing his team out with a two point lead; a battle, won, and well earned by Massillon. After losing their game to South in the morning the Rayen crowd showed most excellent spirit by sending cheer after cheer up for the South team during the South-Massillon game. Rayen's support is certainly appreciated by the South students.

Although our team did not win the tournament we can well be proud of the record they made and we feel sure they will be victorious next season.

Massillon finally won the tournament by defeating Lincoln High of Cleveland 13 to 12.

An all Northeastern Tournament team was selected by officials of the tournament. The selection is of high order and would undoubtedly afford fine opposition for any other high school team which should be selected.

THE GIRL'S TOURNAMENT

On with the fight—the fittest team wins. And it is going to be a regular fight in the shape of a girls' basketball tournament. The girls have given up their long drawn out series this year for a tournament, in which every class will be represented. Every year the girls have looked forward to this series as it is one of the big events in their athletic activities. Who will carry off the honors? As it stands, the Sub-Seniors and Advanced-Seniors will play the finals.

Senior-Faculty Game—Thursday, March 9

Thursday afternoon our gymnasium was the scene of the first game of the annual Senior-Faculty series.

The contest began with a whirlwind pace that continued during the entire first half. Jacobs of the Seniors started the scoring when he caged an accurate shot from the center of the floor. At the end of the first period the score stood 8 to 4 for the Seniors. The second quarter went to the Faculty. At the half, the score was 8 to 8. During the third quarter neither team held any advantage and this ended 14 to 14. The fourth quarter cannot be given to anyone for it was without doubt one of the fastest even seen on our gym floor. The Faculty as a result of Welch's fine shooting ability emerged victorious by one point. There were no individual stars unless the high point men of each team be mentioned, Jacobs and Musselman. Every man on both teams played to the best of his ability and is to be complimented upon the brand of basketball played. Line-up and summary:

Exchanges

The Roman, Rome, Georgia.—

Your student body must be quite sentimental by the character of all your stories. Your Exchange department is a credit to your paper.

The Said and Done, Muskegon, Michigan.—

You have a good supply of literature. Cuts are needed in your magazine.

The Spur, Reading, Pennsylvania.—

We were very much surprised at the character of your jokes which we think should be improved. Otherwise, you have a fine paper.

Star of the North, Virginia, Minnesota.—

“The Spudville Reporter” is a very clever idea. Why don’t you include an Exchange department in your magazine?

The P. H. S. Porpoise, Daytona, Florida.—

You surely have a very wide awake paper. But why not enlarge your paper?

The Micrometer, Cincinnati, Ohio.—

You have a fine variety of clever departments. Your humor section is very well supplied. Don’t you suppose more cuts would improve your magazine?

The Optic, Columbus, Ohio.—

Of course, the Optic is as good as usual. Why they passed us up in mentioning their exchanges—we’ll leave that for them to answer.

The Mariner, Ashtabula Harbor, Ohio.—

“The Mariner” is one of the few papers that contains a good literary section. Only try to enlarge it.

Friday Evening Call, Monessan, Pennsylvania.—

“Friday Evening Call” is very individual in their magazine. We like your type very much. Your heading reading “Girls Lost” was quite bewildering until reading it through we find that all that happened was that the girls lost a game!

Steele’s Lion, Dayton, Ohio.—

We surely were surprised to see so ferocious a name for so small a paper. Why not have your magazine connected rather than loose leaves? For the size of your paper it is excellent. Come again.

The Mirror, Lima, Ohio.—

You have a well arranged paper. Your editorials are rather disappointing. Your athlethic department is well written. Congratulations.

The Rayen Record, Youngstown, Ohio.—

From cover to cover your journal is excellent. Your Freshmen cuts are splendid. We send our best wishes to your Freshmen.

WHAT OTHERS SAY OF US

The Micrometer, Cincinnati, Ohio.—

The subject matter and style of your annual certainly does credit to the class of '21. You have several novel ideas, specially in the Horoscope. The poetry is highly commendable. We suggest that the faculty group photograph be improved. Your admirable school spirit is one of your greatest assets, so keep up the good work.

Heights High Herald, Muskegon, Michigan.—

Judging from the amount of advertising in your paper you must receive the loyal support of the business men. In workmanship, organization and arrangement your paper is a well finished product.

Now you will find them in the ready-to-wear department occupying a place side by side with the blouses. And such colors and styles! Why, they are so attractive that one turns from one to another wondering which to select—and is sorely tempted to select several.

Navajo Sweaters

Slip-on sweaters of fine wool with a design of several different contrasting colors with the effect of an Indian blanket—hence the name Navajo. White with dark figures on dark colored background with bright colors. Priced at $10.00.

SLIP-ON SWEATERS $2.95

Now is the time to wear these bright wool sweaters with a sport skirt. They come in jockey red, jade, henna and two color combinations. Some have the colors interwoven to form a very new and different appearance.

SLIP-ON SWEATERS $3.00

Wool sweaters of a very nice soft quality. Buff with a fancy stripe of mercerized twist in henna, also in brown with henna stripe. Others in plain colors and combinations. Plain and fancy weaves.

UXEDO SWEATERS $3.50

Wool sweaters in combinations of jade and white, navy and jade, jockey red and plain buff.
